

Join us at the Front Porch Gallery to learn how light in photography can be used to shape our perceptions and feelings. We may think we're looking at a picture of the physical world, but what we're seeing is determined by the emotional impact of light's subtle textures. In six distinctive mini-series that the Front Porch Gallery is proud to present, you will see the world revealed in a kaleidoscope of light featuring the work of photographers Rachel Blaser, Jeffrey R. Brosbe, Steve Gould, Marc Sheridan, Jennifer Spencer and Lev Tsimring. That which light illuminates is seen by the eye and experienced by the heart, and its shadows are for the mind to interpret.
